AbroadLink opens new office by the side of the river in Granada (Spain) and adds design as a new line of business

November, 2007

Due to the growth of the company, AbroadLink had to open a new office by the side of the river in Granada. The new 2200 square feet office will act as the new headquarters of the company. AbroadLink plans to open a new line of business, offering design to local companies. According to José Gambín, Managing Director of the company: "We want to leverage and to maintain the talent in the company working on multilingual DTP projects. All our DTP specialists are professionally trained designers. Thanks to the new location of the company and to the experience gained in the last two years developing the company's collateral and working with third party design projects, the company is in a great position to enter the local design market."
